With the amendment to the University Act 2020, the so-called "University of Applied Sciences Studies Act (FHStG)" has been renamed "University of Applied Sciences Act (FHG)". Accordingly, a necessary editorial adjustment was made in this document on January 13th, 2021 and the name FHStG was replaced by FHG.

1 JOB PROFILES

1.1 Occupational fields

Graduates of the Sports, Culture & Event Management program have a wide range of career opportunities. This combination, unique in the German-speaking world, offers graduates a wealth of different job opportunities in three different sectors (sports, culture and event management) and numerous industries. Several social circumstances favor their chances on the job market: The growing importance of the leisure industry within the sports and cultural sector and, as a consequence, the increasing demand for professionally trained personnel. A further aspect is the internationalization of the event industry, which demands professionally operating and comprehensively trained junior staff. The special structures of culture and sport, as areas of public life and the economy, also give rise to further employment opportunities for graduates of the Bachelor course in Sports, Culture & Event Management. These include marketing and event departments of nationally and internationally active companies, the local authorities of sports and cultural policy, funding agencies at EU level as well as professionally established interest groups and representatives. Event agencies, conference centers, congress organizers (PCOs) and major sports organizers are another growing area.

Sports, culture and event management

Sports management and Sports science:

Students acquire knowledge of the functioning of sports organizations and their particular challenges and effects. They are able to apply targeted management actions at local, national and international level. This is particularly true in the areas of marketing, communication and financing as well as promotion and sponsoring, event organization and athlete management. The graduates are equally familiar with the high emotional impact of sports events, their potentials and risks as well as with current trends and dangers of professionalized sports (e.g. doping). They gain knowledge of the economic interrelationships of sports financing and extended sports operations, such as the sporting goods industry, and can derive measures for events from this knowledge. Sports science approaches such as sports politics, sports and health, sports and diversity, sports psychology, exercise and training broaden managerial understanding and enable graduates to understand social contexts as a frame of reference and to derive responsible action from them.

Cultural management and cultural studies:

The students acquire knowledge of the functioning of the cultural sector and its particular challenges and effects. They are able to understand and apply targeted management actions at local, national and international level, especially in the areas of marketing and communication, financing, promotion and sponsoring as well as the organization of events, for example in cultural associations and permanent institutions such as museums, theatres, art-house cinemas, etc. The graduates know the connections between cultural-political commissions to act and socio-political responsibility, are aware of the dangers of art and culture, for example through outdated concepts of nationality, and are familiar with the various mechanisms of the non-profit and commercial cultural sector as the basis of managerial orientations. Cultural theories and methods support the acquisition of knowledge and the possibilities of interpretation of artistic goods and cultural processes. Furthermore, they guarantee a historical understanding of the changeable cultural production along social changes and the changing tasks of art and culture in society.

Event Management and Event Sciences:

Congresses, conferences, charity events and marketing events are familiar to the graduates in their organizational processes, technical necessities and desired goals of the organizers. They can plan and implement procedures, organize technical facilities and participate in marketing and financing. Within the framework of personality development, graduates acquire customer management skills and are thus able to act professionally. The students acquire an overview of various social science theories and concepts that are closely related to event management. The students develop an understanding of how these theories and concepts are anchored in the everyday handling of events and how they contribute to the social significance of events.

Integrative sports, culture and event management

Students acquire transfer and application skills for integrative project management in the fields of sports, culture and event management. In the course Event Staging students are enabled to plan and implement technical and creative aspects for events of all kinds. Integrative aspects of cross-disciplinary project management for Sports, Culture & Event Management are covered in courses Business Cases in SKVM, Business Events, Current Issues in Sports, Culture & Events and Sports, Culture & Business Venues (only part-time) and Digital Trends in Sports, Culture & Events as well as Destination Management and Risk Management. Students learn to grasp and plan the potentials of sports, culture and event management from the perspectives of urban and regional development, including tourism services. They use the specialist skills of sports, culture and event management in order to apply their special features in the respective terminology and rules and to implement them responsibly for synergetic potentials of sustainable urban and regional development. Finally, the students acquire knowledge regarding the international connections of the sport and culture industry in the courses International Management. in Sports, Culture & Events and Area Studies (full-time only). They are thus particularly capable of reflecting on cultural differences, illustrating them with examples and taking global structures into account in project planning.

Management

In the areas Economics, as Introduction to Business Administration, Introduction to Economics, Introduction to Accounting, and Event Law the students get to know the fundamental questions, approaches to solutions and methods of economics and legal fundamentals and are able to understand the relevant questions and recognize the manifold relationships between the economic functions. They can relate these findings to professional practice and are able to deal correctly with the specialist vocabulary of economics. They are able to master selected financial instruments which, in the context of a management accounting system, incorporate essential components such as cost and performance accounting as well as financial accounting. In Human Resource Management, students learn the basic skills required for the challenges of human resource management and are able to design appropriate measures to deal appropriately with these challenges. In the courses Marketing and Applied Marketing Planning the students acquire knowledge and application competence of professional marketing planning in the product and service area and can design and implement target group-oriented communication plans. They recognize the high importance of public relations and press work for sport and culture, can distinguish between channels of self-portrayal and external representation and can use social media communication professionally. In addition, they have knowledge of the particularities of specific forms of cultural user research. Finally, they acquire the ability to apply financial planning as well as methodical competencies in market research in planning, implementation and interpretation. They can critically discuss results for action measures and apply them in a targeted manner. In Project Management, time planning, handling and documentation of events are taught.

Social Skills

In the courses on Social Skills Teamwork & Communication, Media Communication, Creative Lab and Presentation & Negotiation Technique students acquire the ability of successful customer communication and teamwork. Solution orientation and a targeted exchange of information are part of the acquired communication skills internally (team) and externally (financiers, cooperation partners, customers) in written and oral form. They are proficient in presentation techniques and know the importance of linguistic confidence and strategic communication and can apply these in German and English. The students can prepare, carry out and follow up a presentation, moderation and argumentation. They master the necessary techniques and media and can use the interaction of voice and pronunciation, appearance and body language, eye contact, facial expressions and gestures in a targeted manner. The students know risks, recognize conflicts and can initiate solutions. The students are able to assess, shape and lead conversations and negotiations in their professional environment. A foreign language in the first three semesters is a fixed component in the curriculum and helps students to acquire linguistic and other social skills.

International Competence

The curricularly anchored foreign semester in full-time studies and the also obligatory one-week study trip/study trip in the part-time organizational form prepare the students for intercultural exchange. They get to know and assess cultural differences in interpersonal exchange and gain insights into the influences of cultural patterns and dynamics on sports, culture and event management. Intercultural competences are also taught as part of other courses (e.g. technical competences) and enable transfer and application competences in connection with the stays abroad.

Practical Transfer

In the module Academic Research and Academic Methods, students develop a basic understanding of theory-based academic work and hermeneutic procedures. They are able to understand and apply fundamental concepts and theories of the theory of science, knowledge acquisition and the written expression of knowledge and to reflect on them in the context of a later career. They are enabled to work on interdisciplinary tasks or questions and to present solutions. Within the framework of the Bachelor thesis seminar, which also includes the writing of the Bachelor thesis, they gradually learn the fundamentals of academic theory-based argumentation and discussion as well as the methods of quantitative and qualitative empirical social research. They can select and implement the appropriate method for dealing with specific topics and express themselves on an academic level. Finally, they are enabled to put scholarly reflection and contextualization into practice and to make it fruitful both within the framework of the internship and in practical projects. They master the ability to assess actions, application competence from the respective other courses such as economics and project management and learn to act self-responsibly and socially.

1.2 Qualification profile

The qualification goals or learning outcomes of the Bachelor degree course Sports, Culture & Event Management cannot be clearly assigned to an ISCED level International Standard Classification of Education; the greatest equivalence is in the field of management. The contents conveyed qualify the graduates for the professional fields of activity mentioned in the previous chapters.

The qualification goals lie in the teaching of economic, socio-political and management contexts of the sports, cultural and event management sectors. Furthermore, quantitative and qualitative approaches in the field of academic methods are taught. In particular, methods and concepts are dealt with that are necessary for overcoming problems in the management areas of the industries and for solving social challenges. This includes knowledge of, among other things in the areas Sport Management and Sciences, Culture Management and Sciences and Event Management and Sciences as well as their integrative aspects Integrative Aspects (Business Events, Event Staging, Sport, Culture & Business Venues and Business Cases in Sports, Culture and Events Management) with international focus (International Management in Sports, Culture and Events Management, Destination Management and Current Issues in Sports, Culture and Events Management) as well as the imparting of digital trends in the specialist areas. General management and business skills are taught in introductory courses on business administration, economics, personnel management and marketing. In addition, there are complementary competences in the area Social competences with courses on teamwork & communication, media communication, Creative Lab, presentation & negotiation techniques, project management and foreign languages. The application of the expert knowledge as well as the feedback from current practice and research takes place with practice projects and the practical training. Integration and transfer from the field of research takes place within the framework of academic methods and qualitative as well as quantitative research methodology.

Skills acquisition	Cultural Management I /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The students acquire basic knowledge of the cultural sector. They can explain its development history, structures, terminology, framework conditions and social significance and use examples to illustrate them. They are able to identify the current challenges and trends in the cultural sector. They understand the influence of cultural work on societies, can express themselves critically and recognize ethical obligations.
Course contents	Cultural Management I /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 Cultural Management I focuses on the cultural sector in its structures, contexts, framework conditions and modes of operation. In order to understand the structures of the cultural sector, the contexts in the art, music, theatre, literature, film and festival sectors are presented using examples: This includes the interaction between producing, mediating, exploiting and conserving institutions, the importance of supporting structures (public-law, private-law non-profit, private-law-commercial); areas of responsibility in the cultural sector (artistic directors, curators, creative and performing artists, etc.) and labor-law framework conditions, the role of interest groups, copyright regulations and the influential interrelationship between cultural management and cultural policy. Following a historical outline of the emergence of cultural institutions, the focus is on current influencing factors and concepts such as participative formats, cultural development plans, the increased consideration of human rights, cross-sectional management such as cultural tourism and forms of digital cultural production such as Remix.

They can describe the changeability of cultural constructs, identify influences from media development and locate their development impulses in time. They are able to explain comprehensive topics such as "identity" and "memory" using examples. The students acquire the ability to express themselves critically and self-critically and to express ethical obligations.
Course contents	Cultural Studies I /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 Cultural Studies I introduces the fundamentals of cultural studies contexts and provides a frame of reference for cultural management. Language as an elementary as well as complex communication medium is examined by means of the basic models of semiotics and the understanding of discourse according to Michel Foucault. An introduction to media development from book printing to technology-based and digital media focuses on the influence of media on social order and communication, for example in the momentous differences between orality and writing, the changed ideas of representation and reality due to the emergence of audiovisual media, the era of mass media and the cultural industry, and interactive, individualized communication since Web 2.0. Finally, cultural constructs that serve societies as orientation aids and at the same time have socio-political implications are considered in their changes: These include the notions of "time" and "space", the emergence of and factors influencing individual and collective identities, and the role of "memory" and "remembrance" for communities. Definitions of culture and concepts of culture as well as their changeability in the course of media development provide an important matrix for the contexts mentioned above. Recent developments such as the read-write culture (Lawrence Lessig), remix and net cultures (Felix Stalder) are taken into account.

Skills acquisition	Media Communication /ILV / Course no.: vz.MED.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The students are familiarized with the essential practices and techniques of integrated corporate communication. The students are able to independently plan and design the control and improvement of measures in the field of dialog and digital PR & corporate communication. The students can express themselves critically and self-critically.
Course contents	Media Communication /ILV / Course no.: vz.MED.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 In addition to press and public relations work, such as structural analyses of various PR departments, students are familiarized with agency work, network structures and virtual news management. Active (press releases, conferences) and passive (interviews, discussions) media work are discussed, practiced and prepared for real implementation using practical examples. In order to strengthen the practical relevance of the course, public relations work in crisis situations (crisis PR) is also included as teaching content. Communication within companies, foundations, associations and clubs is also discussed. In this context, the term corporate identity from the point of view of corporate communication is also presented and the challenge of integrating social media is discussed and reflected upon.

Skills acquisition	Sports Studies I /ILV / Course no.: vz.SPW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The students know about the historical development of exercise culture and sport and they develop a fundamental understanding of the phenomenon of sport and its differentiation. They know the structures and processes of sport in modern society. They can understand and explain fundamental concepts and theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) of sports history, sports sociology and sports psychology and reflect on them against the background of a later career in the field of sport. They develop an understanding for the connection of the disciplines among themselves and to other disciplines of sports science as well as to cultural and economic disciplines. They are enabled to work on interdisciplinary tasks or questions and to present solutions.
Course contents	Sports Studies I /ILV / Course no.: vz.SPW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The concepts, theories and findings of the history of ideas and culture, of sociology and psychology - insofar as they relate to the context of sport - are dealt with and reflected against the background of potential occupational fields. Students experience the complex interplay between the individual and society in sport and its significance for sporting action and sporting structures.

Skills acquisition	Teamwork &amp; Communication /UE / Course no.: vz.TKO.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 1.5 The students can distinguish between different team phases. They are able to identify predominant problem structures and can analyze necessary courses of action on the basis of concrete example situations. They take into account specific management roles, their implications and developments in the various conflict phases and derive alternative courses of action over time through a discursive approach between experiential learning and reflection. In doing so, they develop procedures which they present in presentations and implement in groups. The students can deal constructively with feedback and criticism and are able to reflect strengths and weaknesses.
Course contents	Teamwork &amp; Communication /UE / Course no.: vz.TKO.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 1.5 The course combines experiential learning through outdoor and indoor parts with stimulating lectures and reflection. The students see the development of teams in their formations, target perspectives and risks of conflicts and their manifestations. Team leadership, the organization of cooperation and social coherence, temporal phases and the assignment and assessment of roles and their parameters lead to a deeper understanding of success and failure parameters. Outdoor components are reflected and integrated into an overall model.

In Events in the City - Using public spaces as event venues, Oxon: Routledge.
Skills acquisition	Event Management I /ILV / Course no.: vz.VAM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The students have a sound knowledge of event organization including legal and technical implications. They develop an understanding of the link between organizational requirements and legal and technical requirements. They are familiar with the phases of event organization and can create event and brand concepts. They are also familiar with integrated event management, management techniques and the use of checklists. The students know the technical issues as well as the areas of law and legal relations, in particular liability regulations and insurance policies. They are enabled to plan, prepare, implement and follow up events, in particular corporate events and incentives, in compliance with the specifications, conditions and budget. The students can evaluate events and apply the findings in their own projects. They know the job descriptions and are able to assess and select the specialists needed for their work as sports, culture and event managers. The students reflect on the development of the concept of events in contrast to the concept of experience, whereby they are able to critically examine the inflationary use of event-related tendencies. In doing so, they become aware of the rapid organizational, technical, spatial, legal and sociological changes within the conception, planning and implementation of events. They are familiar with the techniques for a successful presentation within the framework of an agency pitch.
Course contents	Event Management I /ILV / Course no.: vz.VAM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The teaching content of this introductory basis is based on fundamental concepts, definitions and types of events - building on the history of development and future trends in the event business, the role of the various events within internal and external corporate communication as well as their sociological significance in society is examined. Events are subdivided into their different manifestations and their different significance in the marketing mix of the companies is shown. The phases of event organization and design are shown. Cross-event management, risk management and environmental and safety management are presented. Concepts for business events are developed, planning explained and the logistics behind events explored.

Skills acquisition	Event Law /ILV / Course no.: vz.VAR.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 Students are able to classify actions legally and to subsume them under the corresponding legal provisions. They can legally classify business event types and subordinate them to the relevant legal regulations. The students are familiar with liability and compensation issues and develop a corresponding sensitivity with regard to the legal effects of their actions. Students are able to interpret corporate legal norms and to analyze and interpret them legally on the basis of legal examples.
Course contents	Event Law /ILV / Course no.: vz.VAR.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The course deals with the legal basis with regard to civil and criminal law issues with special consideration of the problems relevant to event law. The different fields of law and their relations to each other, the demarcation between public and private law and the definition of legal concepts form the basis for legal relations. Introduction to general contract law as well as the legal capacity of natural and legal persons are taken into account. Legal issues are of particular importance due to the comprehensive legal relevance as well as legal consequences in the event business. General contract and company law, the legal capacity of natural and legal persons to act, as well as provisions relating to nature conservation, the protection of minors, labor law, building regulations and other legal areas relevant to events are playing an increasingly important role in event management, in particular due to the extensive regulations relating to liability and damages.

Skills acquisition	Communicate in a simple way if the interlocutors speak slowly and clearly and are willing to help. A2 - Basic knowledge Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. personal and family information, shopping, work, local area). Can communicate in simple, routine situations involving a simple and direct exchange of information on familiar and common matters. Can describe with simple language his/her own background and education, immediate environment and things related to immediate needs. B1 - Advanced language use Can understand the main points when clear standard language is used and when it comes to familiar matters from work, school, leisure, etc. Can cope with most situations encountered when travelling in the area where the language is spoken. Can express himself/herself simply and coherently on familiar topics and personal areas of interest. Can report on experiences and events, describe dreams, hopes and goals and give brief reasons or explanations for plans and views. B2 - Independent use of language Can understand the main contents of complex texts on concrete and abstract topics; also understands technical discussions in his/her own special field. Can communicate so spontaneously and fluently that a normal conversation with native speakers is possible without much effort on both sides. Can express himself/herself clearly and in detail on a wide range of topics, explain a point of view on a topical issue and indicate the advantages and disadvantages of different options. C1 - Expert language skills Can understand a wide range of demanding, longer texts and also grasp implicit meanings. Can express him/herself fluently and spontaneously without having to search for words more often. Can use the language effectively and flexibly in social and professional life or in education and studies. Can express himself/herself clearly, in a structured and detailed manner on complex matters, using various means of text linking as appropriate. C2 - Approximate mother-tongue knowledge Can easily understand practically anything he/she reads or hears. Can summarize information from various written and oral sources, presenting reasons and explanations in a coherent presentation. Can express himself/herself spontaneously, very fluently and precisely, and can also make clear finer nuances of meaning in more complex situations.

Skills acquisition	Academic Research /ILV / Course no.: vz.WIS.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 1.5 The students develop a basic understanding of academic research and hermeneutic procedures. They are able to understand and apply fundamental concepts and theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) of the theory of science, of knowledge acquisition and of the writing of knowledge, and to reflect on them against the background of a later career. They are able to understand technical texts and to integrate them into their body of knowledge in order to shape their later professional activity in a target group-specific and socially legitimate way. They are enabled to work on interdisciplinary tasks or questions and to present solutions.
	Bachelor Thesis Seminar /SE / Course no.: vz.WIS.2 / 6th semester / ECTS: 10 The students develop a basic understanding regarding the preparation of an empirical Bachelor thesis with the aim of independently defining and empirically elaborating a topic from the field of sports, cultural or event management on the basis of an appropriate question. They are able to apply fundamental concepts, theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) and empirical methods from their previous studies to their Bachelor thesis and to reflect on their approach. Self-organization, time management, research and expression skills are expanded.

Skills acquisition	Cultural Management II /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUM2.1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 3 The students are familiar with the interrelationships of cultural financing, especially in the areas of public funding and sponsoring, can differentiate these in their principles and present them in their respective basic context. They can explain the operational requirements for applications and requests and illustrate them using examples. They are familiar with the basic functions of more recent formats such as crowdfunding and intensified cooperation and are able to discuss and argue their potentials and limitations.
Course contents	Cultural Management II /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUM2.1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 3 Cultural funding is a central task because it is what makes cultural opportunities and activities possible in the first place. In view of the stagnation of public funding, scarcity of resources and density of supply, cultural funding is one of the core competencies of cultural management. This also includes younger forms such as crowdfunding or intensified national and international cooperation. Funding institutions and cooperation partners are seen as stakeholders that are also relevant for the networking and communication of cultural management. In principle, cultural funding can be considered on two levels: At the operational level, the focus is on knowledge transfer and know-how of funding procurement and processing in their various forms and sets of rules. Here, funding structures and procedural standards of the public sector as well as the special features of cultural sponsoring in the form of partnership design are taken into account to a particular degree as central pillars of cultural funding. The particular challenge of sponsorship funding lies in the reflected selection of possible sponsors, in the creation of adequate consideration and in the sustainable partnership design on an equal footing. On the idealistic and ideological level, the findings from larger contexts are decisive for acquiring critical opinion-forming and confident decision-making skills. The link between public funding and the system of cultural policy or cultural sponsoring and the system of economy requires a) an examination of the functioning and interests of these two systems and their feedback on the cultural sector and b) an understanding of the significance of dialogical structures for social action in the cultural sector. Finally, funding models such as crowdfunding and cooperation are the subject of Culture Management II.

Course contents	Cultural Studies II /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUW2.1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 3 Cultural Studies II has two main themes: On the one hand the sociology of culture according to Pierre Bourdieu, and on the other hand forms of hybrid cultures. Cultural Studies II thus focuses on social, intercultural and transcultural issues. The latter is linked with the central approaches of Culture Studies. This forms a basis for the challenges of cultural institutions as democratic and democratizing educational institutions. The central approaches of cultural sociology according to Pierre Bourdieu are presented for the social contexts. Through his theoretical approaches, the entanglement of cultural symbolism and social action can be described as a set of rules of habitualized values and norms. Bourdieu used the field of art to describe how the taste of the bourgeoisie prevailed in the 19th century. Social and cultural imprints become recognizable as implicit prerequisites of social hierarchies. This often concerns highly cultural institutions, following on from the cultural sector. With the change of perspective on everyday and popular culture as well as the questioning of highly cultural norms, Cultural Studies called for new perspectives in cultural theory with an "interventionalist understanding" (Oliver Marchart): These concern the inclusion of mass media and pop cultural mechanisms as well as the rendering visible of minorities and marginalized groups (race, class, gender). A central concept here is representation, which is a central connection for interculturality and transculturality (hybrid cultures). The basic text on the transculturality of Welsch is linked to the "translational turn" in cultural contexts and explained using examples.

Course contents	Cultural Management III /ILV / Course no.: vz.KUM3.1 / 3rd semester / ECTS: 3 Digital products offered by the media industry represent a central competitor to local cultural offerings and raise the question of what role highly cultural sectors such as publicly financed theatres and museums play in the experience society. Digitization expands the reception space of cultural offerings and changes user behavior and cultural experience. Who participates in culture in what way and which cultural concepts are empirically relevant thus become the decisive research question for contemporary cultural management. The course provides an overview of the central findings of empirical audience and reception research and introduces experiential milieus, media contexts and visitor types in the cultural field. It introduces the fundamentals of cultural mediation and illustrates them with examples from various branches of the cultural industry (music, theater, exhibitions, gardens, film/TV). Various approaches to the cultural audience, such as cultural education, intercultural cultural work and audience development are discussed and the potential of participation and co-creation for the production of cultural experiences is demonstrated.

They can understand and explain fundamental concepts and theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) of sport development, control and governance in sport as well as sport development planning and reflect on them against the background of a later professional activity in the field of sport. The students are able to understand and evaluate specialist texts from the fields of sport development and governance of sport in order to competently meet the challenges of the various interest groups in sport in their later professional careers.
Course contents	Sports Management III /ILV / Course no.: vz.SPM3.1 / 3rd semester / ECTS: 3 The concepts, theories and findings of sport development, control and governance research as well as sport development planning are discussed and reflected against the background of potential occupational fields. The central actors of state sports policy as well as the basic measures of state sports promotion will be reviewed. By focusing on processes of social change, students experience the complex dynamics of modern societies.

Skills acquisition	Creative Lab /SE / Course no.: vz.CLA.1 / 4th semester / ECTS: 2 After completing the course, students can <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Bring an independent project idea into a professional application form</li> <li>• Use knowledge from the core subjects to make their project presentation convincing in terms of content</li> <li>• Argue the need for a project with regard to the eligibility criteria of a call for proposals or a sponsor</li> <li>• Develop a coherent marketing and communication strategy</li> <li>• Create a realistic budget plan</li> <li>• Reflect on the role and working methods of a jury</li> </ul>
Course contents	Creative Lab /SE / Course no.: vz.CLA.1 / 4th semester / ECTS: 2 The Creative Lab uses knowledge from cultural management/science and event management/science to create an innovative project idea. The students learn to develop a convincing concept for a competition in the field of art and culture and to present it to a jury. Project ideas are developed within the scope of their practical implementation and put into an application form that reflects the evaluation criteria of a sponsor both in terms of content and form.  A budget plan with a simple expenditure/income structure shows the individual project activities in a comprehensible way and demonstrates the professional implementation of the idea by a project team (program, marketing, infrastructure, etc.). Targeted cooperation illustrates the synergy effects and network quality of the project.  In a role play, the projects are examined on a professional basis and the criteria worked out beforehand, such as suitability for the tendering, social relevance, etc., are used for evaluation.

Skills acquisition	Digital Trends in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: vz.DIG.1 / 4th semester /            The students develop a basic understanding of the specifics of the digitization of sport and its environment as well as the event industry. They understand current developments, contexts, concepts and the corresponding empirical findings and can reflect on them against the background of a later career in the field of sport and event management.            They recognize the opportunities of digital applications for audience development and cultural mediation and question the consequences of digitization for the reception and dissemination of cultural offerings.            The students are thus able to comprehensively and critically assess developments in the respective fields of practice and initiate change processes accordingly. They analyze complex relationships, know central methods and develop theory-based problem-solving skills.
Course contents	Digital Trends in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: vz.DIG.1 / 4th semester /            The digitization of the sports industry is covered. In particular, the digital staging of sport, the digital interaction and thus pluralization of communication channels with the sports consumer and the production of new digital sports products are focused on. In addition, it is discussed how the digital infrastructure and digital platform influences the competitive environment of sport.            In the context of cultural management, the consequences of digitization for fictional imaginary worlds in art and culture are outlined. Examples from the fields of virtual reality and social media show the potential of digital technologies for experiencing cultural offerings and the emergence of new audiences. However, the loss of cultural diversity through the algorithmization of knowledge and cultural memory is also being discussed.            In addition, the course deals with the digitization of events. Special focus is placed on the effects of digital technologies on existing and new event formats and on the visitors' world of experience as well as on the event planning areas of marketing, security, infrastructure and event evaluation.

They know the consequences of globalization for the programming of cultural institutions. The instrumental skills of the students are trained. They improve their ability to express themselves critically and have management strategies for dealing with complex contexts, solving problems and decision-making authority.
Course contents	International Management in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: vz.INM.1 / 4th            The content of the course is in-depth knowledge of the complex global sports market and its various models as well as their effects, potentials and challenges for sports management. The tension between national, European and global identities calls for diversity management from cultural institutions in program design as well as in personnel management. In cultural management, internationally active cultural organizations are introduced, and the specific action potentials of cultural diversity are pointed out. In the context of the theory of transculturality, the opportunities and limits of transnational concepts such as the World Cultural Heritage and the European Capital of Culture are examined and their effects on regional cultural offerings discussed.            The course also deals with the global influencing factors and effects of internationalization on the event sector and the resulting challenges for organizers. The focus is on authenticity, sustainability and event destination development.

Skills acquisition	Cultural Studies I /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 The students understand cultural studies approaches and recognize central paradigms of cultural, social and media developments. They can describe the changeability of cultural constructs, identify influences from media development and locate their development impulses in time. They are able to explain comprehensive topics such as "identity" and "memory" using examples. The students acquire the ability to express themselves critically and self-critically and to express ethical obligations.
Course contents	Cultural Studies I /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 Cultural Studies I introduces the fundamentals of cultural studies contexts and provides a frame of reference for cultural management. Language as an elementary as well as complex communication medium is examined by means of the basic models of semiotics and the understanding of discourse according to Michel Foucault. An introduction to media development from book printing to technology-based and digital media focuses on the influence of media on social order and communication, for example in the momentous differences between orality and writing, the changed ideas of representation and reality due to the emergence of audiovisual media, the era of mass media and the cultural industry, and interactive, individualized communication since Web 2.0. Finally, cultural constructs that serve societies as orientation aids and at the same time have socio-political implications are considered in their changes: These include the notions of "time" and "space", the emergence of and factors influencing individual and collective identities, and the role of "memory" and "remembrance" for communities. Definitions of culture and concepts of culture as well as their changeability in the course of media development provide an important matrix for the contexts mentioned above. Recent developments such as the read-write culture (Lawrence Lessig), remix and net cultures (Felix Stalder) are taken into account.

Skills acquisition	Sports Studies I /ILV / Course no.: bb.SPW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 The students know about the historical development of exercise culture and sport and they develop a fundamental understanding of the phenomenon of sport and its differentiation. They know the structures and processes of sport in modern society. They can understand and explain fundamental concepts and theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) of sports history, sports sociology and sports psychology and reflect on them against the background of a later career in the field of sport. They develop an understanding for the connection of the disciplines among themselves and to other disciplines of sports science as well as to cultural and economic disciplines. They are enabled to work on interdisciplinary tasks or questions and to present solutions.
Course contents	Sports Studies I /ILV / Course no.: bb.SPW1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 The concepts, theories and findings of the history of ideas and culture, of sociology and psychology - insofar as they relate to the context of sport - are dealt with and reflected against the background of potential occupational fields. Students experience the complex interplay between the individual and society in sport and its significance for sporting action and sporting structures.

(2008): Führung, Emotionen und Persönlichkeit, Saarbrücken, vdm
Skills acquisition	Teamwork &amp; Communication /ILV / Course no.: bb.TKO.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 2 The students can distinguish between different team phases. They are able to identify predominant problem structures and can analyze necessary courses of action on the basis of concrete example situations. They take into account specific management roles, their implications and developments in the various conflict phases and derive alternative courses of action over time through a discursive approach between experiential learning and reflection. In doing so, they develop procedures which they present in presentations and implement in groups. The students can deal constructively with feedback and criticism and are able to reflect strengths and weaknesses.
Course contents	Teamwork &amp; Communication /ILV / Course no.: bb.TKO.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 2 The course combines experiential learning through outdoor and indoor parts with stimulating lectures and reflection. The students see the development of teams in their formations, target perspectives and risks of conflicts and their manifestations. Team leadership, the organization of cooperation and social coherence, temporal phases and the assignment and assessment of roles and their parameters lead to a deeper understanding of success and failure parameters. Outdoor components are reflected and integrated into an overall model.

Skills acquisition	Event Management I /ILV / Course no.: bb.VAM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 The students have a sound knowledge of event organization including legal and technical implications. They develop an understanding of the link between organizational requirements and legal and technical requirements. They are familiar with the phases of event organization and can create event and brand concepts. They are also familiar with integrated event management, management techniques and the use of checklists. The students know the technical issues as well as the areas of law and legal relations, in particular liability regulations and insurance policies. They are enabled to plan, prepare, implement and follow up events, in particular corporate events and incentives, in compliance with the specifications, conditions and budget. The students can evaluate events and apply the findings in their own projects. They know the job descriptions and are able to assess and select the specialists needed for their work as sports, culture and event managers. The students reflect on the development of the concept of events in contrast to the concept of experience, whereby they are able to critically examine the inflationary use of event-related tendencies. In doing so, they become aware of the rapid organizational, technical, spatial, legal and sociological changes within the conception, planning and implementation of events. They are familiar with the techniques for a successful presentation within the framework of an agency pitch.
Course contents	Event Management I /ILV / Course no.: bb.VAM1.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 4 The teaching content of this introductory basis is based on fundamental concepts, definitions and types of events - building on the history of development and future trends in the event business, the role of the various events within internal and external corporate communication as well as their sociological significance in society is examined. Events are subdivided into their different manifestations and their different significance in the marketing mix of the companies is shown. The phases of event organization and design are shown. Cross-event management, risk management and environmental and safety management are presented. Concepts for business events are developed, planning explained and the logistics behind events explored.

Skills acquisition	English I /ILV / Course no.: bb.FRS.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 3 The modules are designed according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). In the modules, students will acquire the language skills and develop the skills necessary for a business-oriented professional or academic activity. The following competences are taught according to CEFR, i.e. after completion of the module, successful graduates will have mastered the following activities: A1 - Beginner                  Can understand and use familiar everyday expressions and very simple sentences aimed at satisfying specific needs. Can introduce him/herself and others and ask other people questions about him/herself - e.g. where he/she lives, people he/she knows or things he/she has - and can answer questions of this kind. Can communicate in a simple way if the interlocutors speak slowly and clearly and are willing to help. A2 - Basic knowledge                  Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. personal and family information, shopping, work, local area). Can communicate in simple, routine situations involving a simple and direct exchange of information on familiar and common matters. Can describe with simple language his/her own background and education, immediate environment and things related to immediate needs. B1 - Advanced language use                  Can understand the main points when clear standard language is used and when it comes to familiar matters from work, school, leisure, etc. Can cope with most situations encountered when travelling in the area where the language is spoken. Can express himself/herself simply and coherently on familiar topics and personal areas of interest. Can report on experiences and events, describe dreams, hopes and goals and give brief reasons or explanations for plans and views. B2 - Independent use of language                  Can understand the main contents of complex texts on concrete and abstract topics; also understands technical discussions in his/her own special field. Can communicate so spontaneously and fluently that a normal conversation with native speakers is possible without much effort on both sides. Can express himself/herself clearly and in detail on a wide range of topics, explain a point of view on a topical issue and indicate the advantages and disadvantages of different options.

Skills acquisition	C1 - Expert language skills Can understand a wide range of demanding, longer texts and also grasp implicit meanings. Can express him/herself fluently and spontaneously without having to search for words more often. Can use the language effectively and flexibly in social and professional life or in education and studies. Can express himself/herself clearly, in a structured and detailed manner on complex matters, using various means of text linking as appropriate. C2 - Approximate mother-tongue knowledge Can easily understand practically anything he/she reads or hears. Can summarize information from various written and oral sources, presenting reasons and explanations in a coherent presentation. Can express himself/herself spontaneously, very fluently and precisely, and can also make clear finer nuances of meaning in more complex situations.

Skills acquisition	Academic Research /SE / Course no.: bb.WIS.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 2 The students develop a basic understanding of academic research and hermeneutic procedures. They are able to understand and apply fundamental concepts and theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) of the theory of science, of knowledge acquisition and of the writing of knowledge, and to reflect on them against the background of a later career. They are able to understand technical texts and to integrate them into their body of knowledge in order to shape their later professional activity in a target group-specific and socially legitimate way. They are enabled to work on interdisciplinary tasks or questions and to present solutions.
	Bachelor Thesis Seminar /SE / Course no.: bb.WIS.2 / 6th semester / ECTS: 10 The students develop a basic understanding regarding the preparation of an empirical Bachelor thesis with the aim of independently defining and empirically elaborating a topic from the field of sports, cultural or event management on the basis of an appropriate question. They are able to apply fundamental concepts, theories (and the corresponding empirical findings) and empirical methods from their previous studies to their Bachelor thesis and to reflect on their approach. Self-organization, time management, research and expression skills are expanded.
Course contents	Academic Research /SE / Course no.: bb.WIS.1 / 1st semester / ECTS: 2 The course introduces academic research and imparts background and practical knowledge for the preparation of seminar papers. The students acquire an understanding and practical skills for the research, acquisition and evaluation of academic literature as well as the hermeneutic and rational-reconstructive processing of academic texts. In addition, they develop an understanding and practical skills for writing academic texts.

Skills acquisition	Event Law /SE / Course no.: bb.VAR.1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 5 Students are able to classify actions legally and to subsume them under the corresponding legal provisions. They can legally classify business event types and subordinate them to the relevant legal regulations. The students are familiar with liability and compensation issues and develop a corresponding sensitivity with regard to the legal effects of their actions. Students are able to interpret corporate legal norms and to analyze and interpret them legally on the basis of legal examples.
Course contents	Event Law /SE / Course no.: bb.VAR.1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 5 The course deals with the legal basis with regard to civil and criminal law issues with special consideration of the problems relevant to event law. The different fields of law and their relations to each other, the demarcation between public and private law and the definition of legal concepts form the basis for legal relations. Introduction to general contract law as well as the legal capacity of natural and legal persons are taken into account. Legal issues are of particular importance due to the comprehensive legal relevance as well as legal consequences in the event business. General contract and company law, the legal capacity of natural and legal persons to act, as well as provisions relating to nature conservation, the protection of minors, labor law, building regulations and other legal areas relevant to events are playing an increasingly important role in event management, in particular due to the extensive regulations relating to liability and damages.

Skills acquisition	Cultural Management I /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUMW1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 4 The students acquire basic knowledge of the cultural sector. They can explain its development history, structures, terminology, framework conditions and social significance and use examples to illustrate them. They are able to identify the current challenges and trends in the cultural sector. They understand the influence of cultural work on societies, can express themselves critically and recognize ethical obligations.
	Cultural Studies II /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUMW2 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 4 The students can explain and apply the concepts and approaches of cultural sociology according to Pierre Bourdieu. Secondly, they are familiar with hybridization forms in culture - such as "inter", "multi" and "trans" culture - and can link these with approaches of cultural studies and take up perspectives of gender studies and postcolonialism. The students acquire the ability to express themselves critically and self-critically and to express ethical obligations with regard to equal treatment and cultural esteem.
Course contents	Cultural Management I /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUMW1 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 4 Cultural Management I focuses on the cultural sector in its structures, contexts, framework conditions and modes of operation. In order to understand the structures of the cultural sector, the contexts in the art, music, theatre, literature, film and festival sectors are presented using examples: This includes the interaction between producing, mediating, exploiting and conserving institutions, the importance of supporting structures (public-law, private-law non-profit, private-law-commercial); areas of responsibility in the cultural sector (artistic directors, curators, creative and performing artists, etc.) and labor-law framework conditions, the role of interest groups, copyright regulations and the influential interrelationship between cultural management and cultural policy. Following a historical outline of the emergence of cultural institutions, the focus is on current influencing factors and concepts such as participative formats, cultural development plans, the increased consideration of human rights, cross-sectional management such as cultural tourism and forms of digital cultural production such as Remix.

	Cultural Studies II /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUMW2 / 2nd semester / ECTS: 4 Cultural Studies II has two main themes: On the one hand the sociology of culture according to Pierre Bourdieu, and on the other hand forms of hybrid cultures. Cultural Studies II thus focuses on social, intercultural and transcultural issues. The latter is linked with the central approaches of Culture Studies. This forms a basis for the

Course contents	challenges of cultural institutions as democratic and democratizing educational institutions. The central approaches of cultural sociology according to Pierre Bourdieu are presented for the social contexts. Through his theoretical approaches, the entanglement of cultural symbolism and social action can be described as a set of rules of habitualized values and norms. Bourdieu used the field of art to describe how the taste of the bourgeoisie prevailed in the 19th century. Social and cultural imprints become recognizable as implicit prerequisites of social hierarchies. This often concerns highly cultural institutions, following on from the cultural sector. With the change of perspective on everyday and popular culture as well as the questioning of highly cultural norms, Cultural Studies called for new perspectives in cultural theory with an "interventionalist understanding" (Oliver Marchart): These concern the inclusion of mass media and pop cultural mechanisms as well as the rendering visible of minorities and marginalized groups (race, class, gender). A central concept here is representation, which is a central connection for interculturality and transculturality (hybrid cultures). The basic text on the transculturality of Welsch is linked to the "translational turn" in cultural contexts and explained using examples.

Skills acquisition	Digital Trends in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: bb.DIG.1 / 3rd semester /            The students develop a basic understanding of the specifics of the digitization of sport and its environment as well as the event industry. They understand current developments, contexts, concepts and the corresponding empirical findings and can reflect on them against the background of a later career in the field of sport and event management.            They recognize the opportunities of digital applications for audience development and cultural mediation and question the consequences of digitization for the reception and dissemination of cultural offerings.            The students are thus able to comprehensively and critically assess developments in the respective fields of practice and initiate change processes accordingly. They analyze complex relationships, know central methods and develop theory-based problem-solving skills.
Course contents	Digital Trends in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: bb.DIG.1 / 3rd semester /            The digitization of the sports industry is covered. In particular, the digital staging of sport, the digital interaction and thus pluralization of communication channels with the sports consumer and the production of new digital sports products are focused on. In addition, it is discussed how the digital infrastructure and digital platform influences the competitive environment of sport.            In the context of cultural management, the consequences of digitization for fictional imaginary worlds in art and culture are outlined. Examples from the fields of virtual reality and social media show the potential of digital technologies for experiencing cultural offerings and the emergence of new audiences. However, the loss of cultural diversity through the algorithmization of knowledge and cultural memory is also being discussed.            In addition, the course deals with the digitization of events. Special focus is placed on the effects of digital technologies on existing and new event formats and on the visitors' world of experience as well as on the event planning areas of marketing, security, infrastructure and event evaluation.

Skills acquisition	Cultural Management II /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUM2.1 / 3rd semester / ECTS: 4 The students are familiar with the interrelationships of cultural financing, especially in the areas of public funding and sponsoring, can differentiate these in their principles and present them in their respective basic context. They can explain the operational requirements for applications and requests and illustrate them using examples. They are familiar with the basic functions of more recent formats such as crowdfunding and intensified cooperation and are able to discuss and argue their potentials and limitations.
Course contents	Cultural Management II /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUM2.1 / 3rd semester / ECTS: 4 Cultural funding is a central task because it is what makes cultural opportunities and activities possible in the first place. In view of the stagnation of public funding, scarcity of resources and density of supply, cultural funding is one of the core competencies of cultural management. This also includes younger forms such as crowdfunding or intensified national and international cooperation. Funding institutions and cooperation partners are seen as stakeholders that are also relevant for the networking and communication of cultural management. In principle, cultural funding can be considered on two levels:        At the operational level, the focus is on knowledge transfer and know-how of funding procurement and processing in their various forms and sets of rules. Here, funding structures and procedural standards of the public sector as well as the special features of cultural sponsoring in the form of partnership design are taken into account to a particular degree as central pillars of cultural funding. The particular challenge of sponsorship funding lies in the reflected selection of possible sponsors, in the creation of adequate consideration and in the sustainable partnership design on an equal footing.        On the idealistic and ideological level, the findings from larger contexts are decisive for acquiring critical opinion-forming and confident decision-making skills. The link between public funding and the system of cultural policy or cultural sponsoring and the system of economy requires a) an examination of the functioning and interests of these two systems and their feedback on the cultural sector and b) an understanding of the significance of dialogical structures for social action in the cultural sector.        Finally, funding models such as crowdfunding and cooperation are the subject of Culture Management II.

Skills acquisition	Event Management II (E) /ILV / Course no.: bb.VAM2.1 / 3rd semester / ECTS: 5 Students learn about the follow-up phase of event organization as well as the theoretical fundamentals of financial accounting and budgeting, event marketing, event evaluation, and event sustainability. They are thus familiar with the processes and content of all three phases of event organization and can create comprehensive event concepts and apply integrated event management techniques and tools. They are enabled to plan, prepare, implement and follow up events, in compliance with the specifications, conditions and budget. The students develop a familiarity with the different areas of knowledge and tools related to event management and marketing. In addition, they are able to assess events and apply the findings in their own projects. The students develop the critical handling of relevant concepts and tools and the ability to analyze, synthesize and apply information. With regard to instrumental skills, the understanding of the relationship between theory and practice is expanded and written communication in the English language is trained.

Course contents	Cultural Management III /ILV / Course no.: bb.KUM3.1 / 4th semester / ECTS: 4 Digital products offered by the media industry represent a central competitor to local cultural offerings and raise the question of what role highly cultural sectors such as publicly financed theatres and museums play in the experience society. Digitization expands the reception space of cultural offerings and changes user behavior and cultural experience. Who participates in culture in what way and which cultural concepts are empirically relevant thus become the decisive research question for contemporary cultural management. The course provides an overview of the central findings of empirical audience and reception research and introduces experiential milieus, media contexts and visitor types in the cultural field. It introduces the fundamentals of cultural mediation and illustrates them with examples from various branches of the cultural industry (music, theater, exhibitions, gardens, film/TV). Various approaches to the cultural audience, such as cultural education, intercultural cultural work and audience development are discussed and the potential of participation and co-creation for the production of cultural experiences is demonstrated.

Course contents	Creative Lab /SE / Course no.: bb.CLA.1 / 5th semester / ECTS: 2 The Creative Lab uses knowledge from cultural management/science and event management/science to create an innovative project idea. The students learn to develop a convincing concept for a competition in the field of art and culture and to present it to a jury. Project ideas are developed within the scope of their practical implementation and put into an application form that reflects the evaluation criteria of a sponsor both in terms of content and form.  A budget plan with a simple expenditure/income structure shows the individual project activities in a comprehensible way and demonstrates the professional implementation of the idea by a project team (program, marketing, infrastructure, etc.). Targeted cooperation illustrates the synergy effects and network quality of the project.  In a role play, the projects are examined on a professional basis and the criteria worked out beforehand, such as suitability for the tendering, social relevance, etc., are used for evaluation.

Skills acquisition	International Management in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: bb.INM.1 / 6th The students develop their theory-based problem-solving skills as well as their analysis and synthesis skills. They understand the difference between national and transnational decision-making structures and can place the strategies of cultural institutions within international cultural policy. They know the consequences of globalization for the programming of cultural institutions. The instrumental skills of the students are trained. They improve their ability to express themselves critically and have management strategies for dealing with complex contexts, solving problems and decision-making authority.
Course contents	International Management in Sports, Culture &amp; Events (E) /ILV / Course no.: bb.INM.1 / 6th The content of the course is in-depth knowledge of the complex global sports market and its various models as well as their effects, potentials and challenges for sports management. The tension between national, European and global identities calls for diversity management from cultural institutions in program design as well as in personnel management. In cultural management, internationally active cultural organizations are introduced, and the specific action potentials of cultural diversity are pointed out. In the context of the theory of transculturality, the opportunities and limits of transnational concepts such as the World Cultural Heritage and the European Capital of Culture are examined and their effects on regional cultural offerings discussed. The course also deals with the global influencing factors and effects of internationalization on the event sector and the resulting challenges for organizers. The focus is on authenticity, sustainability and event destination development.

2.4 Internship

The students choose an internship independently. They can draw on the extensive range of internship advertisements offered by the Kufstein University of Applied Sciences. The Director of Studies checks the professional correspondence of the internship activities with the contents of the course and the qualification profiles of the course of studies. Subsequently, the Director of Studies checks whether the internship corresponds to the training objectives of the program and whether the student can be employed according to his/her level of qualification. If these requirements are met, the organizational processing is carried out by the International Relations Office (IRO). A detailed internship guide supports students in organizing their internship semester; students can also contact the IRO and the Director of Studies if they have any questions or need support.

Students must apply for the internship using the form (= job description). The form contains the central data of the student and the internship supervision as well as the goals and the tasks/activities in the company providing the internship. The internship is confirmed or approved by the signatures of the Director of Studies and the internship supervisor.

The student must reflect, document and present the experiences and findings gathered and evaluate the internship. Conversely, the internship supervisor must evaluate the students. The student must prepare an interim report, a final report and a presentation and complete an evaluation form. At the beginning of the internship, he/she will receive an internship guide which lists the points to be worked on. A key requirement is to compare the agreed objectives with the achieved ones. The documentation prepared by the student and the supervisor is evaluated by the Director of Studies. If the achievement of the goals and the adaptation to the qualification level of the student are not guaranteed, the corresponding internship position is excluded for the future. A list and reports on the internships are available to subsequent students via the Moodle teaching platform.

2.5 Semester Abroad

The FH Kufstein Tirol has been awarded the Erasmus Charter, which is regarded as a European standard of excellence in supporting student and staff mobility. In addition, the objectives of the Bologna Process on the mutual recognition of diplomas will be fully implemented. The implementation is based on the European Credit Transfer System-ECTS and the Diploma Supplement. In these areas the FH Kufstein Tirol was awarded the ECTS Label and the Diploma Supplement Label.

Ensuring comparability, support and supervision measures

The FH Kufstein Tirol Bildungs GmbH has provided for an obligatory semester abroad (four to six months) at a partner university of the Fachhochschule since its start in the 5th semester. A total workload of 30 ECTS must be demonstrated at the partner university in question. Due to the compulsory semester abroad in the fifth semester, no courses are offered at the FH Kufstein during this period.

For the course of studies "Sports, Culture & Event Management ", students are given selected institutions in the context of preparation for their studies abroad which are particularly suitable for the course of studies "Sport, Culture & Event Management". The list of institutions is based on many years of historical experience combined with appropriate new entrants. Care is taken to ensure that the courses completed abroad are related to the topics of the "Sports, Culture & Event Management" program (especially in the areas of Sports, Culture and Event Marketing, International Culture Studies and Business Studies). This ensures that students receive an in-depth knowledge of the relevant subjects so that the desired competences can be developed. Intercultural and linguistic competences, which are highly relevant in practice, are also developed during the studies abroad. Students are also encouraged to organize most of their stay abroad independently (e.g. search for accommodation, registration with the partner university, obtaining the necessary documents for registration and travel to the country in question, etc.).

The International Relations Office (IRO) of the FH Kufstein, in cooperation with the degree courses, organizes an information event in the winter semester of each year on the topics of "semesters abroad and internships", as well as the annual "Exchange Fair". In addition, the IRO is constantly available for advice. The Fachhochschule Kufstein Tirol has more than 200 contacts to cooperating universities. The students name their preferred partner universities and then receive the allocation based on a grade ranking. In addition, students choose courses with a volume of 30 ECTS. The course selection of the students is checked for equivalence by the Director of Studies and recorded in the "Learning Agreement". The Learning Agreement is signed by the IRO after approval by the Director of Studies. At the partner university, the Learning Agreement must be countersigned by the local IRO. If the course selection is changed, the supplementary sheet "Changes to the Learning Agreement" must be completed and submitted immediately to the IRO in Kufstein or to the responsible Director of Studies for approval.

The recognition of the study program abroad is confirmed by the "Transcript of Records" of the host university and attached to the certificate of recognition.

3 ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

The admission requirements at the FH Kufstein Tirol are regulated according to the following terms:

1. The general admission requirements are regulated by § 4 FHG as amended; it applies to persons with a general university entrance qualification.

2. Persons without a school-leaving certificate must take a university entrance examination according to § 64 a UG 2002 as amended. These persons acquire the general university entrance qualification for Bachelor studies in a specialization group by passing the university entrance examination in accordance with an ordinance issued by the Rector's Office of a University. The successful completion of the university entrance examination thus entitles the holder to admission to all studies in the specialization group for which the university entrance qualification was acquired. The university entrance examination can be obtained for certain groups of subjects in accordance with an ordinance of the Rector's Office of a university, whereby the following group of subjects is relevant for the FH Kufstein:

Social and economic studies (e.g. Business Administration, Economic Education, Statistics, Sociology).

Applicants who have completed a 3-year vocational, middle school, a training in the dual system or a subject-relevant German advanced technical college certificate obtain the entitlement to study at the FH Kufstein Tirol through additional examinations in the subjects German, English and Mathematics. In the case of the German advanced technical college certificate, the additional examination must only be taken in those of the three subjects in which the grade is "inadequate" or worse. All additional examinations must be passed before the start of the third semester.

3. For individuals with relevant dual training the apprenticeship certificate in one of the following special fields according to the respectively valid announcement of the Federal Ministry of Economics, Family and Youth is valid as an admission requirement:

- Office, Administration, Organization
- Electrical Engineering, Electronics (Event Technology)
- Trade
- Media Design and Photography
- Tourism and Gastronomy

4. Persons with a degree from one of the relevant vocational middle schools listed below may also be admitted:

- School of Hotel Management, School of Tourism, School of Gastronomy (three years)
- Commercial schools (at least two years)
- Technical, commercial and applied arts schools (three or four years)
- Vocational schools for economic professions (three years)
- Business school (at least two years)
- Vocational schools for agricultural and forestry occupations (at least two years)
- Commercial schools (three years)

Newly emerging apprenticeships in similar fields must be recognized accordingly.

The group of persons under numbers 3. and 4. must complete additional examinations by the beginning of the third semester as an entry requirement and, if necessary, take appropriate preparatory courses. This is possible at the FH Kufstein.
